Veritable Plague of Little Green Insects Hits Kansas

Topeka, Kan., September 17.—Forty billion or more passidae went on their honeymoon in Kansas last night. Fifty billion are flying for the white lights night, and as many more to-morre to-night, and as many more to-morrow night, and a few billions next night, and then they will return to the leaves of the trees and bushes and become domesticated and have no more longing for the merry white way.

Topeka, Wichita, Emporia, Lawrence, Holton, Manhattan and numerous other Kansas towns reported a veritable plague of little green bugs around the street lights last night. Many house-wives here complained that the little bugs went right tarough screens and swarmed around the lights in the house.

The nuptial flight is the scientific The nuptial flight is the scientific name for the visiting of the plague of little green bugs. The flight usually continues for four nights. These bugs and their wives swarm around the bright street lights for three or four hours, then the honeymoon is ended and they hike back for the tall timber, lay their eggs and die in n few days.
